

Acariquara

Most important characteristics	Acariquara is a type of wood with a typical appearance and natural wild shapes. Our Acariquara hardwood is FSC® certified.
Durability class	Most likely 1.
Specific gravity	880-1040 kg/m3.
Colour	Acariquara hardwood has a light brown.
Applications	Horizontal railings, posts.
Hardness	9000-12000 N .
Grain	Cross wire, messy and irregular.
Timber texture	Moderately fine.
Details	The wood of the trunk is hard, has a density of 0.9 and hardly ever splits. Acariquara wood has a fine to moderately fine wood grain. This type of hardwood is extremely valuable. Not only for its durability because and its resistance to moisture and insect damage during the growth period, but also for its excellent ability to support heavy weights.
Botanical name	Minquartia guianensis
Origin area	Acariquara wood grows in Brazil.
Other names	Guayacán pechiche