

Jatoba

Durability class Class 1.

Specific gravity Fresh 1000-1200 kg/m3. At 12% moisture level 750-850 kg/m3.

Colour Jatoba wood is reddish brown-dark yellow in colour. The broad alburnum (sapwood) is gray to brown-grey.

Due to its wear resistance, Jatoba wood is suitable for parquet, furniture, floors and facade cladding. In

Applications shipbuilding, this type of wood is frequently used for both interior and exterior panelling. Van den Berg Hardhout has supplied Jatoba wood for floor in homes, shops and showrooms.

Strength class D40.

Brandklasse gevel D en B mogelijk met o.a. Forestlines®

Hardness 10400-14600 N Janka.

Grain Straight, sometimes irregular thread and light cross-thread.

Timber texture The grain is fine to moderately coarse.

Stability Average.

Drying Jatoba wood dries slowly, with little distortion and surface cracks.

Workability The wood of Jatoba is fairly easy to work with and easy to finish nicely.

Details The heartwood is very difficult to penetrate due to its hardness.

Screwing/nailing Pre-drilling is necessary with Jatoba wood.

Finishing of surface

Good with a solvent-containing agent. When using a water-based agent, a sealer is desirable to prevent channelling of finishing agent.

Botanical name Hymenaea courbaril

Origin area South America.

Other names Locus, Rode locus, Jutai, Courbaril, Brazilian Cherry.

Remarks Interested in buying Jatoba hardwood? For the current price of Jatoba, we ask you to contact us. We only supply FSC® certified Jatoba for responsible forest management.

Family Leguminosae

Forestlines® Jatoba is available in Forestlines® for cladding