

Muirapiranga

Most important characteristics

Durability class Class 1-2.

Specific gravity Fresh 1230 kg/m3. At 12% moisture content 900-1100 kg/m3.

Colour A beautiful Bordeaux reddish brown with dark brown/black veins.

This exclusive, very luxurious type of hardwood is suitable for interior and exterior panelling, Applications exclusive luxury furniture, veneer, posts, parquet, woodturning and decorative applications such as jewellery and musical instruments.

Strength class Unknown. Hardness 9000 N.

Grain Muirapiranga wood is mostly very straight-lined, but cross-threading occasionally occurs.

Timber texture Fine to moderately coarse.

Stability Very little.

Drying Slowly without major risks, with little deformation and cracks.

Despite its great hardness, Muirapiranga hardwood is relatively easy to work with, and gets a Workability beautiful high gloss once polished.

The thick sapwood has a yellow-white colour and is easily distinguishable from the Details heartwood. Often the heartwood has a cherry or golden sheen. Muirapiranga is a very durable type of wood and is resistant to rot, fungi and termites.

Screwing/nailing Holds nails/screws very well. Pre-drilling is recommended.

Finishing of surface Good, and can be polished to a beautiful high gloss. Botanical name Brosimum Paraense Huber, B. Lanciferum Ducke.

Origin area Muirapiranga wood is found in the Amazon region and Para.

Other names Pau Rainha, Pao Brasil, Conduru, Satinwood, Palo de Sangre, Bloodwood.

Muirapiranga hout is familie van de Moraceae Family Projects Handrails Station Holendrecht (Amsterdam).